ABOUT ME

Greetings, My name is Vadim.
I'm a novice Front-end developer.
What I do well is HTML/CSS programming and, I'm currently learning JavaScript as my goal is to become a complete professional Web full-stack developer in the future.

As for now, I do markup and basic web programming. I'm quite good at creating responsive websites using Bootstrap so that the website looks well on all devices and across all platforms. I finish every single project I start, constantly improving my skills in web-development.

I enjoy the overall web-development process constantly following various trends in web-development. That said, I do have a tremendous willingness to work and innovate.
